

Every interior design book is going to want Fee Fee La Fou HQ on its pages. A combined love of the circus and a fascination with fairgrounds has materialised into a shop which is nothing short of an explosion of creativity and eclectic taste, with every wall painted either a bright colour or covered in wallpaper with neon smiley faces or circus elephants. Everything is for sale from the eccentric picture frames made from kirsch toys then covered with pink paint to the 1970's fairground 'Grabber Machine' and retro furniture painted in vibrant clashing colours. Handmade cushion covers combining Hee-Man and Thomas the Tank Engine along with chandeliers stuffed with toys make Fee Fee La Fou the perfect gift shop for any friend where you know a scented candle just won't cut it. FB
